Words from Christophe Nicolas Biot

“At the beginning, there is this passion for hair. This living material, inseparable from our being and an indispensable asset to beauty. Since I started out, my professional career has always crossed paths with plants and nature, and the flirtation I have with the plant world has never wavered. Because there is no beautiful hair without a healthy scalp, I wanted to create an innovative line of hair products to meet all their needs. Designed around three essential principles – oxygenation, detoxification and nutrition – this 100% natural and organic line is available in several original products for a return to the essentials: a healthy scalp for healthy, breathing hair.”

Apply to wet scalp and massage with fingertips, taking care to lift hair to ensure full distribution of product on scalp. If necessary, dampen the head again to increase emulsion. Leave on for 2-5 minutes to penetrate hair fiber.

THE POWDER SHAMPOO

Naturally preserved in dry, preservative-free form, The Shampoo Powder transforms on contact with water into a fine foam of incomparable softness. Its high-tech formula, based on patented gelling clay, is four times more concentrated than a traditional professional liquid shampoo. Respectful of all hair types and with a minimum of cleansing agents, it gently cleanses hair and oxygenates the scalp.

DIRECTIONS FOR USE

- Apply the equivalent of one teaspoon to damp hair.
- Apply to dry hair, parting by parting, mixing and adding water. In this way, the powder is better distributed on the scalp and at the roots.
- Repeat if necessary.

CHRISTOPHE-NICOLAS BIOT'S TIP

Washing hair thoroughly means massaging it without rubbing. Light, circular movements of the fingertips on the scalp stimulate blood flow, helping to revitalize the hair roots. Vigorous rubbing will irritate the scalp and excite the sebaceous glands, which will produce excessive sebum.

ACTIVE INGREDIENTS

- Coconut oil surfactant for a non-abrasive cleansing effect,
- Precious desert date oil deeply nourishes hair, enveloping it in a fine protective sheath,
- Amazonian cherry pulp has an antioxidant action.

ALOE VERA

The pulp of this large cactus concentrates most of the A, E and B vitamins, as well as essential minerals. This specific composition gives it interesting properties for skin and hair: healing, cell regeneration, skin hydration, anti-inflammatory, antibiotic.

ACEROLA

Acerola grows wild in the tropical regions of South America, the Canary Islands, Hawaii, Australia and the West Indies, as well as in the Amazon rainforests of Brazil and Venezuela. It contains antioxidant vitamin C, 30 times higher than that found in oranges. It is also rich in vitamins B1, B6 and A, remineralizing minerals and polyphenols.

SUNFLOWER

Native to Mexico, sunflower is a plant from which a perfect oil for skin and hair is extracted. Rich in moisturizing and antioxidant vitamin E, as well as omega 6, this oil softens, smoothes and intensely nourishes even the driest skin. It also fortifies damaged hair.

AMAZONIAN INCENSE

A resin extracted from the breu branco tree found in northeastern Brazil, Amazonian frankincense is harvested from the very heart of the tree. Its film-forming and moisturizing properties surround the hair with a sheathing film to repair, moisturize and add shine. Applied to the scalp, it also has anti-inflammatory properties.

WILD AFRICAN GRAPES

African wild grape extract is derived from the seed of the sub-Saharan plant of the same name, found in the savannahs of Burkina Faso. Its action on the skin's microcirculation evacuates toxins, soothes the epidermis, tones it and improves circulation. A powerful antioxidant, it fights free radicals and helps maintain scalp and root bulb cells in a better metabolic state, while slowing the aging process.

BOROJO EXTRACT

A miracle plant, both edible and cosmetic, borojo is grown in South America, particularly in Colombia and Panama. An active ingredient, Reverteam, is extracted from its pulp, which is high in plant sugars and phosphorus and calcium. Reverteam is particularly effective in combating the free radicals responsible for skin ageing that damage the skin's barrier function.

It also preserves cellular activity and stimulates hyaluronic acid synthesis to effectively combat the effects of the passage of time. It helps to regenerate the basal papillae of root bulbs, thus boosting hair growth.

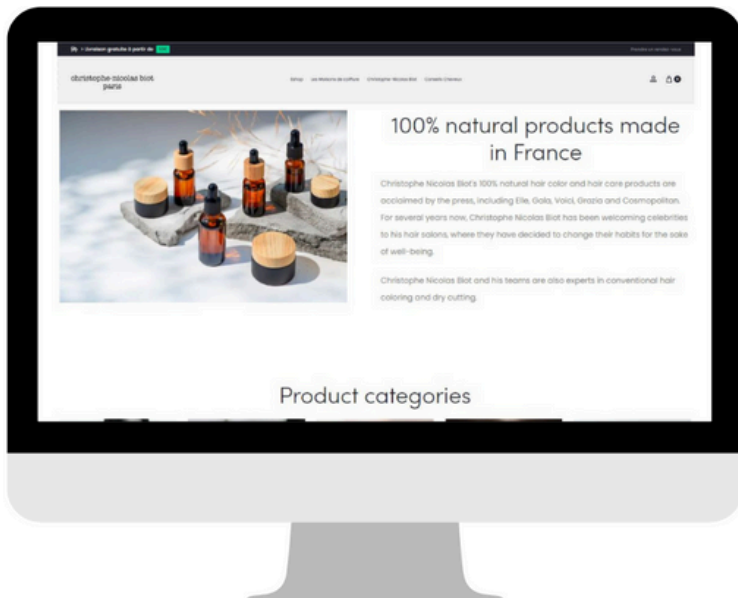

DESERT DATE OIL

Desert date palm oil is rich in essential unsaturated fatty acids (oleic acid and linoleic acid) and saponins, giving it fungicidal and anti-inflammatory properties. Protective and moisturizing, desert date oil softens and repairs dry, rough and flaky skin. On the hair side, it effectively preserves and nourishes the hair fiber and maintains the balance of the scalp.
